

Trish Martynook

Trish is a seasoned family law paralegal with over 30 years experience dedicated to serving family law clients in Saskatchewan. Trish retired from a 25-year career with Legal Aid Saskatchewan in 2011. As a passionate advocate for access to justice, she established her own family court consulting firm where she continues to provide a wide range of services to private bar solicitors as well as self represented litigants. She is a life-long learner who believes in giving back to her community and in addition to her role as Vice Chair of the Board of Directors of the Regina Airport Authority, she is also a member of the Ministry of Social Services' Southwest Regional Appeals Committee and a former Director of Moose Jaw Transition House.

Prior to joining Legal Aid, Trish gained significant experience working in a number of industries including banking and finance, engineering and human resources and extensive experience in federal, provincial and municipal legislation.
