YQR Welcomes Flair Airlines to Regina

Today James Bogusz, President and CEO of the Regina Airport Authority announced that Flair Airlines has expanded their current route schedule to include service to Regina International Airport (YQR).

The new route will run every Monday and Friday. The morning flight will originate in Vancouver, land in Regina and then fly to Toronto. The return flight will depart from Toronto, land in Regina and then head back to Vancouver.

The first Flair flight to YQR is tentatively scheduled for August 24.

In addition to Regina, Flair Airlines will also be adding new service to Prince George, Fort McMurray, Saskatoon and Victoria, in addition to existing service to Vancouver, Kelowna, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Toronto.

“We are pleased to have Flair Airlines, a low-cost carrier, service Southern Saskatchewan,” said Bogusz, “Flair offers a low-cost operating model into two of our most popular locations.”

“We continuously receive requests from our passengers to service these communities,” says Jim Scott, CEO. “Many of these areas are experiencing reduced accessibility and we know that Canadians need affordable air fares now more than ever. We are committed to supporting these communities across the country as they safely reopen to travel.”
