

YQR Fire Captain Honoured with Saskatchewan Protective Services Medal

Regina Airport Authority (RAA) values the people in our airport family that make a difference, not only at Regina International Airport (YQR), but in our province. It is our pleasure to recognize Fire Captain Kevin Joa, a member of Regina Airport Authority's Fire Department, who has been nominated by the Village of Grand Coulee for the Saskatchewan Protective Services Medal.

The Saskatchewan Protective Services Medal recognizes the exceptional long service of individuals working directly to protect people and/or property, and supervisory personnel in the public service sectors who ensure the safety, security and protection of Saskatchewan residents. It honours the protective services providers and focuses attention on the efforts and work of police, fire and emergency professionals, and others working in the field of safety and security. We would like to congratulate Kevin and his fellow residents of Grand Coulee who work in assisting the Grand Coulee Fire Department on this award and for serving their community.

"We are committed to connecting with our community and are so proud to see members of our airport team sharing their time and expertise in the communities they live in," said Richmond Graham, President and CEO, Regina Airport Authority. "On behalf of RAA Fire Chief Kevin Hembroff and everyone at YQR, we congratulate RAA Fire Captain Kevin Joa and his fellow community members in Grand Coulee for their outstanding achievements."
